Welcome to the Four Corners Region

The land of beautiful mesas, expansive views and cultural diversity, the Four Corners region is home to the Navajo Mine on the Navajo Nation, a vast Indian reservation that spans three states and encompasses 27,000 square miles of traditional Navajo homelands.

The Navajo Mine is one of the area’s top economic drivers providing local communities with a wide variety of benefits:

- Jobs for 356 salaried and hourly employees with a total payroll of $47,007,088
- Jobs for Native Americans – 75% of workforce is Native American
- Income for local businesses – $61,000,000 spent on materials, supplies & contracts
- Charitable contributions:
  - $480,345 to United Way in 2016
  - $200,000 to 24 non-profit organizations in region
- Revenue for the Navajo Nation:
  - Comprises 20% of the Nation’s general fund

For more than 50 years, Navajo Mine has been serving the community. For more information, visit www.navajo-tec.com

ON THE COVER: Since opening in 1989, Pinon Hills Golf Course has been consistently recognized as one of the best public golf courses in the United States. The peak of this recognition was in the early 1990’s when Pinon Hills was voted the #1 Public Golf Course in the USA. Over the past 20 years, Pinon Hills has moved slightly up and down in different publications’ yearly rankings. In 2014 it was rated as the #7 Municipal Golf Course by Golfweek Magazine. COME to Farmington and take a look into the heart of the Four Corners. The city of about 44,500 is far-removed from the hustle and bustle of Albuquerque and offers an unparalleled glimpse into the treasures of the Land of Enchantment, as New Mexico is known.

Farmington is nestled between the San Juan, Animas and La Plata rivers and surrounded by world-class cultural gems and magnificent landscapes, such as the rugged San Juan Mountains located an hour to the north.

Farmington is the commercial center of the Four Corners. Its population more than doubles on weekends as shoppers from the Navajo Nation and other nearby areas come into town.

The area’s history dates back more than 2,000 years, back to when the Anasazi people lived first in what are now called “pit houses” and later in pueblo structures built from sandstone.

The Spanish began settling in the eastern part of San Juan County in the early 1800s, but it was not until the mid-1870s that the area’s population began to grow with the settlement of what was then known as Farmington.

Farmington blossomed into a flourishing farm and ranch economy and was incorporated in 1901. Today, Farmington is the largest city in San Juan County.

The city’s average of 273 sunny days per year means that outdoor activities can be enjoyed year-round. The annual average rainfall is 7.5 inches, and the average snowfall is 12.3 inches.

A landscape of rolling plateaus, mesas and mountains gives Farmington a frontier town backdrop. With Utah’s world-renowned national parks only a few hours away, the snow-capped peaks of Colorado an hour north and the Grand Canyon just fewer than five hours to the west, it’s the perfect place for enjoying outdoor recreation and travel.

The area’s natural resources also contribute to the local economy.

The petroleum, natural gas and coal industries are a major employer across the county. Farmington is no exception. Southwest of Farmington, a major coal mine is owned by the Navajo Nation. Coal from Navajo Mine is used to fuel the Four Corners Power Plant. The San Juan Mine provides coal for the San Juan Generating Station, a key source of power for the Public Service Company of New Mexico and customers throughout the Southwest and West. In addition, Halliburton, ConocoPhillips, WPX Energy and other companies operate in the area.

Main Street in historic downtown Farmington is the place to visit for those who wish to stay in town. The Old West meets the comforts and amenities of the 21st century with an abundance of art galleries, trading posts, local restaurants and watering holes.

Farmington’s most famous annual event is the Connie Mack World Series. Youth baseball players from across the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico flock to Farmington for one week each August to compete in amateur baseball’s top tournament. Other annual events include Riverfest, Freedom Days, Totah Festival and Road Apple Rally.

Farmington is many things. It is a charming border town, an oil and gas industry hub, a gateway to the natural beauty of the Southwest, a living remnant of the Old West and a glimpse into the future of the Four Corners.

If a small town meets big city setting is what you’re looking for, then Farmington is the place to be.
Today, the economic base of San Juan County is supported by oil and gas, as well as a strong growth in retail and tourism.

People have discovered San Juan County residents not only enjoy a great climate, but a quality of life many consider second to none. San Juan County is a destination for boating, fly-fishing, mountain biking and hiking.

In 2001, 118 miles of New Mexico Route 44 that connect San Juan County to Albuquerque were rebuilt and widened. The improvement of that stretch of highway, which was renamed U.S. Highway 550, made a big difference to those who travel from San Juan County to Albuquerque.

AZTEC

This charming city of 6,763 people is the county seat of San Juan County.

Whether you’re strolling along the Animas River or touring the Aztec Ruins National Monument, if you’ve got somewhere to go in Aztec, it only takes a short walk to get there.

Your walking tour can begin at the Aztec Museum at the north end of historic Main Avenue. An informational guide identifying and describing each of the historic properties can be obtained at the Aztec Museum or the Aztec Visitor Center.

Aztec also has the distinction of having 78 structures on both the National Register of Historic Places and New Mexico Register of Cultural Properties.

BLOOMFIELD

As you drive east of Farmington, watch for Bloomfield, a quaint roadside town with plenty of places to see and things to do. The town’s population of about 8,112 people easily are finding opportunities for fun in the area.

Salmon Ruins sits to the south of U.S. Highway 64 near the west end of town. The ruins are an unearthed and preserved glimpse of the ancient Chacoan people, who inhabited the region from about A.D. 850 to 1250.

Throughout the year, there are several events and festivals for residents and visitors to enjoy. Attractions include Bloomfield Days and the San Juan Balloon Rally.

SHIPROCK

Shiprock, named after a giant rock formation, is one of the largest communities on the Navajo Nation. The community is in San Juan County but overlaps with the Navajo Nation, the largest Native American tribe in the country.

From the east, Shiprock is a gateway to the Four Corners Monument, Monument Valley and Canyon de Chelly National Monument.

Shiprock has become a popular backdrop for Western movies in recent years. The rock itself rises nearly 1,583 feet, reaching a total elevation of 7,177 feet. It sits 12 miles south of the town of Shiprock, which had a population of about 8,295 in 2016.

One of the more prominent events that visitors and locals can attend in Shiprock is the annual Northern Navajo Nation Fair in the fall.

Another local event is the Shiprock Marathon in May. The course starts in Red Valley, Ariz., and finishes in Shiprock.

Welcome to FARMINGTON

Whoever said “Home is where the heart is,” had to call Farmington, New Mexico, home.

My heart has belonged to this wonderful community for many years. People often ask me “What do you love most about Farmington?” and I am always compelled to respond, “where do I begin?”

I am the proud father of four, and schools, sports, values, and culture are important to them. Every weekend, there is something for my family to do together. We visit our amazing public library, take in the several museums, enjoy the city’s aquatic center, attend and participate in sporting events, picnic in one of the city’s beautiful parks, and enjoy the countless family events offered by San Juan College, one of the best community colleges in the southwest.

While Farmington has all the amenities of a larger city, it offers a slower, less frantic lifestyle. Friday nights will find most people at a football, basketball, wrestling, softball, baseball, t-ball, or soccer game. Saturdays will find those same people at dance recitals, swim meets, rodeos, or 4-H Club events. It’s all about family here and everybody is family.

If you enjoy community involvement, you find much to enjoy in Farmington. Farmington is all about helping others, and you’re certain to find a club or organization that will give you the gift of helping others.

The spirit of Farmington is very much “small town, big heart.” With the largest single county fair in the state, the San Juan County Fair offers exhibits, a livestock show, concerts, and a carnival. The Connie Mack World Series is the jewel in Farmington’s crown. Scouts from baseball’s major leagues come to watch and check out the best high school baseball players in the world, who are enjoying the baseball diamond at Ricketts Park. Sandstone Productions offers an outdoor theatre with outstanding actors and in an absolutely beautiful venue. Holidays bring out the child in everyone in Farmington, with a Christmas Parade, Festival of Trees, ice skating, Fourth of July events, a Thanksgiving Turkey Trot, Easter egg hunts, and the ever popular “Let’s make this a holiday” weekend!

Farmington is also home of Pinon Hills Golf Course, one of the best in the nation. It is a short drive away from the Quality Waters of the San Juan River, water sports and camping at Navajo Lake and Park, beautiful Indian Ruins, the unbelievable beauty of the Bisti Badlands, and the winter sports wonderland of southern Colorado.

I encourage you to visit Farmington and discover for yourself the treasure that this community is. But I will warn you – once you visit, you’ll want to stay. And we’d LOVE to have you stay!

Welcome to Farmington!

It is my distinct honor to welcome you to Farmington and the Four Corners area of Northwest New Mexico. Relocating can be a difficult and stressful time, but I am confident that our community can help make it an enjoyable process. You will quickly learn that Farmington is a community with a sense of identity and pride; a community where people are friendly, helpful, and accommodating. After all, Farmington is a community where you can Energize your Life’s Journey!

Farmington is quickly becoming a destination city where active families and outdoor lovers thrive! See for yourself, when you take time to google our hashtags: #livefarmington, #workfarmington, #playfarmington, and #stayfarmington. These hashtags will provide you with hundreds of images that demonstrate how we live, work, and play in our community—and they’ll make you want to STAY!

If you don’t have time to google us, let me highlight a few of the attractions in our area that will help you Jolt Your Journey® as you become acclimated to your new home. Some favorites are the Ancestral Puebloan Ruins of Chaco Canyon, the Aztec and Salmon Ruins, Navajo Lake State Park, the riverine trails along the Animas River, the Farmington Gateway Museum, and the Farmington Public Library. Also available for your enjoyment is our nationally acclaimed Pinon Hills Golf Course and the Outdoor Summer Dinner/Theater at the Lions Wilderness Park Amphitheater. Additionally, Farmington is host to the Connie Mack World Series baseball tournament played here annually at Ricketts Park for the past 54 years.

The Beach at Lake Farmington is a “can’t miss!” With a designated swimming/wading area filled with inflatable climbing walls, obstacles, and slide; an open area for non-motorized water crafts and fishing; and a soon-to-open area for dry camping, summer doesn’t get much better than this! The City of Farmington is full of recreational opportunities and amenities, just like The Beach, that are minutes away from your neighborhood. 2018 and 2019 will provide even more options as the City of Farmington adds an outdoor water park in Brookside park, begins an 8.6 million dollar infrastructure and place-making project in our downtown corridor, and works to attract the Outdoor Industry to our area. You can find out more about these places and events at our Chamber of Commerce located in our beautiful downtown area at 100 West Broadway.

Similarly, Farmington is a rich in history and offers much in the way of cultural diversity. In recognition of that history and diversity, the City of Farmington continues to sponsor and promote a program referred to as “ Civility First Four Corners”, the goal of which is to stress the importance and benefits of community interactions founded on tolerance, inclusion, and respect, among other attributes of civility.

Ultimately, whether you are relocating for retirement or for work, you’ll discover that the Farmington area has one of the best four-season climates around. I’m sure you will find our native hospitality charming and our community inviting as you consider joining our community-wide family!

Parks and Recreation

Farmington is home to more than 50+ park properties and facilities that cover hundreds of acres.

The city has strived to place a park within one walking mile of every residential community, said Cory Styron, director of the city’s Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Department.

“We have trails that are just about all connected within city limits all along the Animas River,” he said. “You can go down there just about anytime and see people walking, running and riding bikes. Then you go to Lions Wilderness Park and have a totally different experience.”

Lions Wilderness Amphitheater hosts Sandstone Productions’ outdoor summer theater each year. Lion’s Wilderness Park also houses the 27-hole disc golf course, which has beginners scaling on sandstone on the first nine holes and more advanced players navigating through piñon and juniper on the second and back nine.

Nearby is the Anasazi Loop, a 2.2-mile, single-track trail set in the high desert landscape that overlooks Farmington. It’s good for mountain biking, walking and running.

The Farmington Museum and Visitor’s Center at Gateway Park offers a gateway to those new to the area. The museum features exhibits highlighting the area’s oil and gas industry history and diverse cultures, and often hosts traveling art shows.

The Farmington Convention & Visitor’s Bureau, housed in the same building, offers literature and information on amenities and events in the area. During the warmer months, the Summer Terrace Music Series offers free live music Saturday evenings.

The E3 Children’s Museum and the Riverside Nature Center are also must-see spots for both residents and visitors.

Saddleback Park and Westland Park provide areas for dog owners to let their dogs get free roaming time and socialize with other pups.

Berg Park could be considered Farmington’s “Central Park” and hosts Riverglo in December, where people enjoy the New Mexican tradition of luminarias, and is home to the All Veterans Memorial Plaza.

Berg Park is home to events such as Riverfest in the spring, which highlights the Animas River that flows through it.

Two rapids in the river have been reconstructed to provide a “playpark” for rafters, kayakers and tubers.

The Animas Trail that runs along and across the river is designated as a National Recreation Trail and provides a setting for numerous organized races and runs.

What makes all of this possible here in Farmington? Styron credits the community.

“We have huge community support that treasures the outdoors,” he said.

San Juan Regional Medical Center

Established in 1910, San Juan Regional Medical Center has been providing care to patients since before New Mexico even became a state. Today the 194-bed acute care hospital, located at 801 W. Maple St. in Farmington, serves patients from all over the Four Corners region of New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and Utah.

As a community owned non-profit hospital, San Juan Regional Medical Center offers a remarkable range of lifesaving services. The hospital responds to thousands of emergency calls each year and operates a Level III trauma center. Its AirCare emergency service owns and operates a helicopter and fixed-wing aircraft.

Other services offered by the medical center include an 18-bed inpatient rehabilitation hospital, a cancer center, heart center with emergency interventional cardiology services, spine center, wound treatment center and San Juan Health Partners specialty clinics. The clinics, located throughout San Juan County and Southern Colorado, bring expertise in primary and specialty care, diagnostic services and rehabilitation to patients in their own communities. The medical center’s mission to personalize care and create enthusiasm and vitality in healing extends beyond clinical care with community benefit programs aimed at creating wellness. Free educational programs, support groups, health fairs, flu vaccination clinics, and low-cost blood screenings all support the health of the Four Corners.

San Juan Regional Medical Center is accredited by Det Norske Veritas (DNV), is a Certified Primary Stroke Center, Accredited Chest Pain Center with Primary PCI, and a two-time Mission: Lifeline® gold award winner for excellence in cardiac care. Reach us at 505-609-2000.

San Juan College – Where Success Matters

At San Juan College, Success Matters on all levels. With dedicated faculty and staff, students are provided with the skills and confidence they need to land a new career, enhance their current job skills or further their educational goals.

Offering both face-to-face and online programs, San Juan College provides an affordable, personalized education. Students can choose from more than 100 programs to earn two-year degrees or certificates from disciplines offered in six schools, including Business; Energy; Humanities; Health Sciences; Science, Math and Engineering; and Trades and Tech. In addition, the College provides non-credit community learning classes and workforce training. For those looking to continue their education beyond an associate degree, the Dual Credit program annually provides over 2,000 local high school junior and senior students with a jump on their college education. Through this program, students have the opportunity to enroll in San Juan College courses while still in high school. While earning college credits, the same courses fulfill a portion of the students’ high school requirements.

Another unique aspect of the College is the San Juan College High School (SJCHS), which opened its doors in 2016 to the first cohort of 80 ninth-grade students. The early college high school was the first in the state to work in partnership with four school districts including Aztec, Bloomfield, Central Consolidated and Farmington Municipal Schools. The students selected to attend the high school graduate with both a high school diploma and associate degree, simultaneously.

The College also partners with state universities to offer bachelor and master’s degrees.

A culturally diverse population, which includes Native American and Hispanic Latino students, enhances the campus learning experience. With more than 30 percent of the student population being Native American, San Juan College is ranked number two in the country in Native American graduates receiving associate degrees. The College also takes pride in serving those who served our country, holding the distinction as a Military Friendly® institution.

The College provides numerous learning opportunities across the campus for all ages. Through the summer Kids Kollege program, students, 4 to 15 years of age, participate in a variety of week-long classes that add fun to learning, including a Super Summer S.T.E.M. Camp that engages students in exciting classes from Table Top Gold Challenge to Zany Zoology. In addition, a summer GenCyber Camp is offered to elementary, middle and high school students, where they engage in cybersecurity activities and learn from experts in the field. These classes are made available thanks to support from community funding provided through the San Juan College Foundation.

The popular Encore program offers classes that are designed for adults, ages 50-plus. From exercise classes such as Zumba and Senior Fitness to field trips that reflect the unique Four Corners culture and spectacular landscape, there is something for everyone. Seniors also can brush up on computer skills, or delve into writing, photography or history with instructors who have expertise in their fields.

Whether you are looking to begin or continue your journey in higher education, increase your job skills, or simply engage in learning for fun, San Juan College provides you with a wide range of learning opportunities.

Four Corners Regional Airport  #livefarmington

The Airport has two runways at an elevation of 5,506 feet, full time Aircraft Rescue and Fire Fighting, and an Air Traffic Control tower. On demand charter flights are offered by Vernon Aviation to and from nearly any destination. Car rental services are offered by Avis, Budget, and Hertz. In addition to aviation fuel sales, Atlantic Aviation, a Fixed Base Operation (FBO) facility, offers hangar space, aircraft maintenance, in-flight catering, flight crew lounge and flight planning services. The Four Corners Regional Airport offers small and large hanger lease opportunities, as well as shaded parking for aircraft. Also located in the facility is a full-service restaurant, No Worries Sports Bar and Grill which boasts a patio that is open seasonally, with amazing views of runway activity and mountains.

Retirement

Older adults looking to retire in a welcoming community with a full schedule of fun activities should take a look at Farmington. The city caters to its older residents with a number of services, including courses at San Juan College and activities at the Bonnie Dallas Senior Center. Seniors say they like the “down-home, comfortable” community of Farmington. “With a population of over 45,000 people, it is large enough for there to be lots of things to do,” one retired Farmington resident said, “but small enough to get to know people.” The Encore Senior College Program offered at San Juan College is based on research focused on older adults’ vitality and well-being, said Community Learning Center Director Liesl Does. “The college identified four areas that research consistently identifies as important for older adults. Those four areas are relationships, wellness, learning and service,” Does said. “As a community college, life-long learning is a key element of our programming.” Encore classes incorporate field trips to encourage students to explore the area. Computer classes offer learning at a different pace for older adults. Exercise classes are low-impact and are appropriate for all fitness levels. Classes are open to all adults, but, for those New Mexico residents 65 and older the course fees are especially reasonable. The Encore Program is also closely connected with San Juan College’s Volunteer Center, so participants have easy access to community volunteer opportunities. The Bonnie Dallas Senior Center is another resource for older adults. The center provides a meeting ground for retirees, with exercise classes, meals, information on area services provided to seniors and assistance with things such as taxes and Medicare. And those who come to visit relatives will have all the area’s diversions to explore. That includes fishing at Quality Waters of the San Juan River, which boasts what many call the best fly-fishing in the country. The Bisti Badlands Wilderness Area offers an otherworldly landscape. For more information on the Encore Senior College Program, go to www.sanjuancollege.edu/encore or call 505-566-3214. The Bonnie Dallas Senior Center can be reached at 505-599-1380 or www.fmtn.org/bdsc

Midland Redskins celebrate their victory over the Danville Hoots, Sunday, Aug. 6, 2017 during the Connie Mack World Series final game at Ricketts Park in Farmington. (Jon Austria/The Daily Times)

The biggest event in Farmington each year is the Connie Mack World Series, one of the finest amateur baseball tournaments in the country. Each year during the first week of August, the series takes center stage at Ricketts Park, the crown jewel of Farmington. This will mark Farmington’s 54th year hosting the series, which runs from Aug. 3 through Aug. 9. One of the biggest amateur tournaments in the world, teams from across the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico compete all summer for the chance to qualify for the Connie Mack World Series. The tournament is named after Hall of Fame manager Connie Mack, who is the all-time leader in wins with 3,776. Many players use the series as a platform to gain attention from Major League Baseball and NCAA Division I scouts. The tournament has seen stars such as Barry Larkin, Ken Griffey Jr. and Manny Ramirez, as well as several current and rising MLB stars. For more information, go to www.cmws.org.

May – August 21, 2018
North, South, East, and West: Maps from the Farmington Museum Collection
Maps have been used since the dawn of civilization to document places and to show physical features, such as rivers, roads, and boundaries. Upon closer examination, they also provide insight into the people that made them and the times in which they were created. Showcasing a variety of examples from the late-nineteenth century to the present, the exhibition North, South, East, and West uses maps from the Farmington Museum collection to explore the history of the region. The exhibition is free to the public. Regular museum hours are Monday through Saturday, 8am to 5pm.
Information: 505-599-1174 or fmtn.org/farmingtonmuseum

May – October
Chaco Night Sky Program
The Chaco Night Sky programs begin with staff presentations on archaeoastronomy, cultural history, and other topics, and are followed by telescope viewing of celestial objects. The road into Chaco may become problematic if weather is present. Call ahead if you are unsure of conditions. Program is free with park admission. Programs are every Friday and Saturday night from May through October.

Now – September 8
Dinosaurs of New Mexico: Fossils from the Collection of the New Mexico Museum of Natural History and Science
New Mexico has become a world renowned place for dinosaur discoveries. Fossils found in the state have helped scientists learn how dinosaurs lived, how they evolved, and how they went extinct. Since opening in 1986, the New Mexico Museum of Natural History and Science has become the number one place to view dinosaurs from New Mexico. Wanting to share their collection and discoveries with people throughout the state, the Museum of Natural History and Science presents the exhibition Dinosaurs of New Mexico at the Farmington Museum. The exhibition is free to the public. Regular museum hours are Monday through Saturday, 8am to 5pm.
